7 - CONCLUSION TITLE NEEDED HERE

We have covered SDG's, Planetary boundaries, and Black Ecologies. Let's return to our concept map of sustainability towards sustenance.

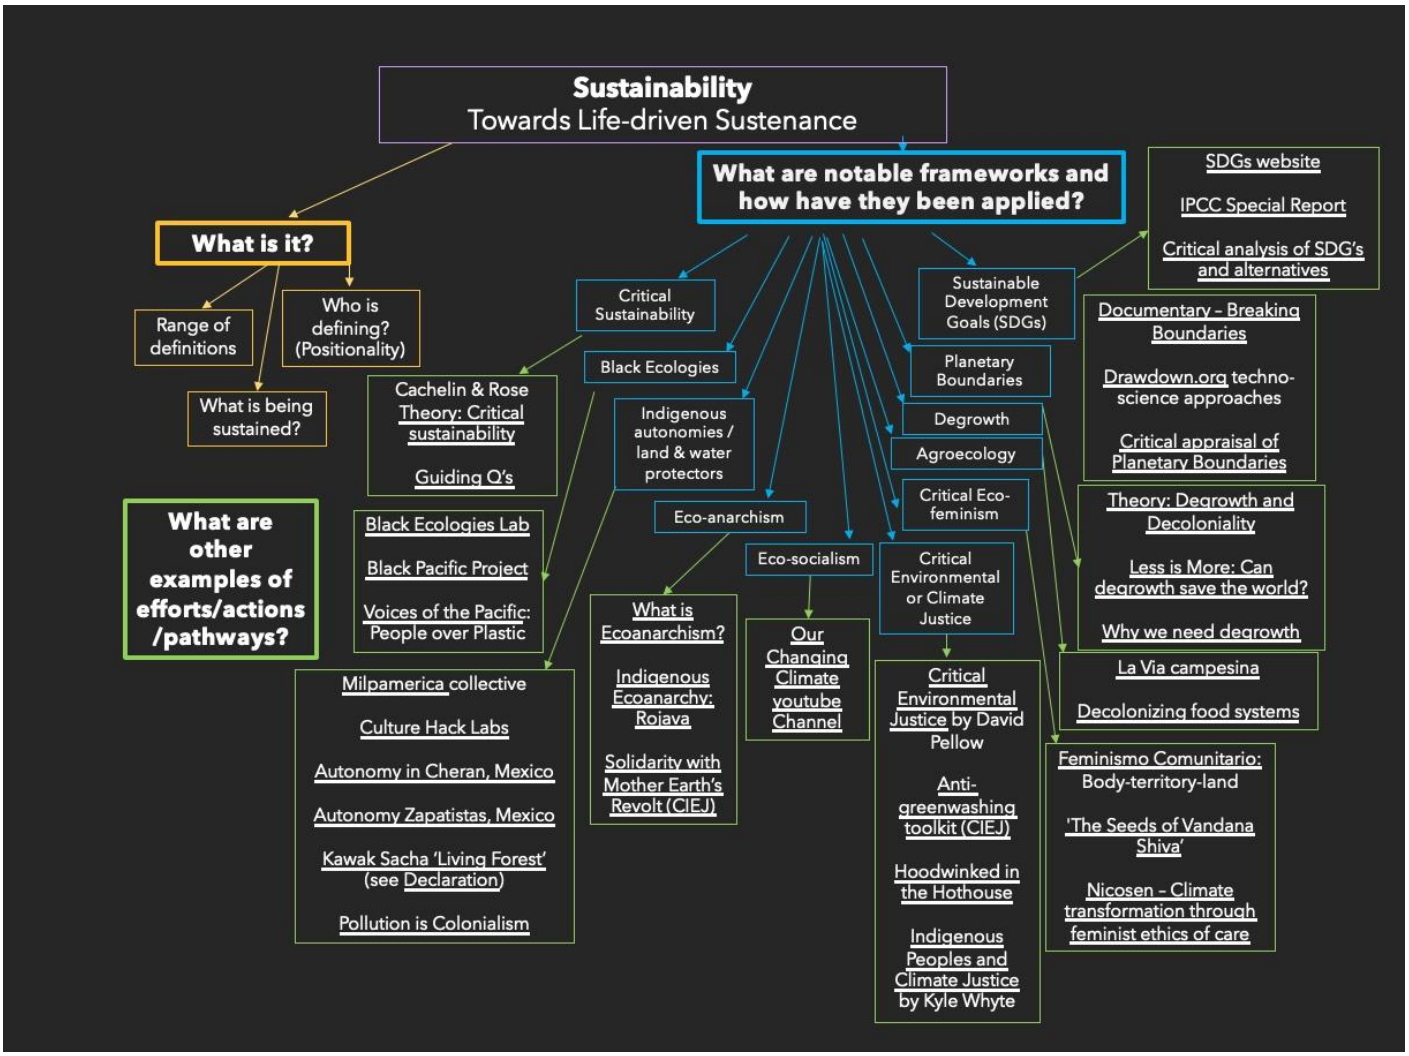
As you can see there is a wide range of additional sustainability frameworks that are rising to the call for a profound transformation as we confront global environmental crises rooted in racial capitalism, patriarchy, extractivism, and domination of nature and people.

I invite you to continue your own personal exploration of these (and perhaps other) sustainability frameworks using the key guiding questions (refer to slide 7). (This needs to be changed)

Below I have embedded links that can propel your exploration of additional sustainability frameworks by orienting you towards examples, efforts, actions, and pathways. As you explore, I hope that you will be inspired and guided especially by the last key guiding question:

The statement above will have to be reworded, because the reader cannot click on the links in the grid. To make clickable links, a grid cannot be used.

Which of these frameworks brings us closer towards collective liberation and how?



Additional sources:

> Indigenous Autonomies: https://www.revistadelauniversidad.mx/articles/1d844a7f-318d-4f8d-9472-092d557d15d3/el-ezln-y-el-cni-en-la-defensa-del-territorio-y-de-la-madre-tierra

> Globalización, tierra, resistencia y autonomía: el EZLN y el MST https://www.scielo.org.mx/scielo.php?script=sci_arttext&pid=S0188-25032011000300001#:~:text=La%20experiencia%20zapatista%20se%20basa,de%20un%20poder%20popular%20aut%C3%B3nomo.

> Critical Ecofeminisms: https://avispa.org/lorena-cabnal-sanar-y-defender-el-territorio-cuerpo-tierra/

Created 2026-10-12 02:43:50 UTC by Ramanda
Updated 2026-10-12 02:59:40 UTC by Ramanda